BARNES WAS MURDERED

Deputy Coroner Glazebrook's Testimony at the Inquest.

EVIDENCE OF WITNESSES

The Autopsy Showed That the Wounds on the Skull Must Have Been Produced by Violent Means—Conflicting Statements of the Accused Wife and Brother-in-Law.

At the Sixth precinct station-house this afternoon Coroner Haunett held an inquest over the body of Robert Barnes, who, it is alleged, was murdered by his wife and brother-in-law, Andrew Williams, as detailed in yesterday's Times. The difficulty took place at No. 1214 Nolan court southwest. This court has the reputation of being one of the toughest parts of "Bloodfield." The following composed the jury: John McNeely, Richard Parry, Edward Brick, B. P. Litz, Henry A. Otterback, and J. T. Fleischhauer.

Dr. Glazebrook, the deputy coroner, performed the autopsy, and testified that a triangular wound was found on the back of Barnes' head. This wound, he said, could not have been made by the man falling down. He also said that he had found a great deal of blood under the skull, which had been the cause of death. He was of the opinion that the wound on the back of the head was the one which had caused the death to form.

The following testimony was given by the witnesses called by the coroner:

Dr. Glazebrook said that the back of the head of the man was scratched as though he had been fighting.

The policeman who made the arrest, was the next witness called and testified that he was called to No. 1214 Nolan court, and that he found Barnes lying at the bottom of the stairs. The wife of Barnes told the officers that her husband had fallen down stairs. She said that he was drunk. She denied to the officer that there had been a fight of any kind.

Dr. Glazebrook also said that the back of the head of the man was scratched as though he had been fighting.

THE POLICEMAN'S TESTIMONY.

Policeman Bowie, who made the arrest, was the next witness called and testified that he was called to No. 1214 Nolan court, and that he found Barnes lying at the bottom of the stairs. The wife of Barnes told the officers that her husband had fallen down stairs. She said that he was drunk. She denied to the officer that there had been a fight of any kind.

Dr. Glazebrook also said that the back of the head of the man was scratched as though he had been fighting.

FOUND HIM DEAD.

"Then the tumbling and noise began, and when some of the boys came around they went in and found the man dead." The witness said that young Williams was not in the house when the trouble took place.

My Williams, a sister of the Barnes woman, was then called and said that she had gone out of the house before the fight began. She said, "I don't know what happened, but I heard that she had been killed." She said that she had heard that she had been killed.

She heard the dispute about money, but did not see the fight.

Sam Hill testified that he saw Barnes after the fight, and he saw the fight as it happened downstairs. He heard the noise of the fight upstairs, and heard the fall, and when he went in he found the man dead.

At a late hour this afternoon the jury returned a verdict holding the Barnes woman for the murder of her husband, and dismissed Andrew Williams, as it was clearly demonstrated that he was not present during the trouble.

KNIGHTS ARE IN HARMONY

No Split Resulted From Consideration of Treasurer's Report.

PLEA OF THE SUFFRAGISTS

General Assembly Indorses a Petition Favoring Restoration of Voting Privilege to Men and Its Extension to Women in the District—The Wamaker Matter Debated.

The last dangerous controversial question upon which it was feared serious differences might arise within the ranks of the Knights of Labor was today passed in safety and without external indications of dissension.

The committee on finance, to which was referred the annual report of Treasurer Hayes, announced that the books had been found to be correct, and the report was adopted. There was no comment, no reference to the next general assembly, in the course of the debate in general assembly regarding the sale of headquarters property in Philadelphia and its reinstatement in Washington.

The recommendation of the committee was adopted, making the fiscal year of the organization hereafter terminate September 30 instead of June 30. This change was made in order to bring the adjudication of accounts into line with the meeting of the general assembly.

Rochester, N. Y., was chosen by a large majority on the final ballot as the place for holding the next general assembly. The other places put in nomination were Washington, Chicago, Columbus, Ohio, Dallas, Tex., and Hot Springs, Ark., each city receiving a purely complimentary vote. The time of meeting will be the first Tuesday after the second Monday in November.

THREE WOMAN SUFFRAGISTS.

Three Washington ladies, constituting a committee on behalf of the Woman's Suffrage Association, were received by the General Assembly and presented a petition for the enforcement of the delegates asking that women suffrage shall be given to the District of Columbia.

There was today some further discussion of the boycott instituted by District Assembly, No. 1, of Philadelphia, against John Wamaker and Wamaker & Brown, which was introduced by the general assembly in the course of the debate in general assembly that the employees of both houses were compelled, before beginning work, to sign anti-iron agreements not to join labor organizations, and their membership in beneficial societies is made compulsory. At the same time the allegation was made that the goods sold by these employees are manufactured in sweat shops.

In addition to all else, the highly sensational statement was made that John Wamaker assessed each of his employees 20 to 30 cents, according to their salaries, to defray the expenses of a grand reception which it was proposed to give the Letter Carriers during their recent convention in Philadelphia. Mr. Wamaker, in his position as ex-postmaster-general, desired to receive and entertain the carriers. It was asserted that after the assessment had been levied and the firm having refused to discharge Knights of Labor employees. It was determined to give the firm all the aid and influence of the organization, and each member is expected to aid in demonstrating to people not acquainted with the facts the injustice of the boycott. Such members as refuse to do so will be expelled from the organization.

ABOUT THE BOYCOTT.

The best means of removing the boycott placed by the United Garment Makers upon Jackoff, Cabot & Co. of New York was discussed at length, the firm having refused to discharge Knights of Labor employees. It was determined to give the firm all the aid and influence of the organization, and each member is expected to aid in demonstrating to people not acquainted with the facts the injustice of the boycott. Such members as refuse to do so will be expelled from the organization.

THE COMMITTEE ON LABOR.

The committee on labor reported an amendment to the constitution providing that no general officer of the organization shall be elected for more than two consecutive terms. The object of this is to make three terms in succession impossible. The proposition was adopted and the secretary directed to send it out for a referendum vote.

A proposition is this afternoon under discussion to elect two members of the general executive body each alternate year, thus leaving two members to be elected at each session of the general assembly, instead of biennially, as at present. A majority of the delegates are believed to be in favor of this plan.

It is possible, but not probable, that an adjournment will be reached tonight, but a number of committee reports are yet to be received, and sessions will likely be held tomorrow.

Until Saturday night Crocker will sell, without any reserve, any pair of men's regular $25 shoes at $3.00. This includes every style.

FARMERS MADE PETITION

Committee of Marketmen and a Congressman Presented It.

WELLINGTON NOT PRESENT

The Maryland Representative Again Promised to Attend, But Broke His Word—Short Preliminary Meeting and Then the Delegation Went Before the District Commissioners.

The committee of retail market gardeners and farmers appointed by their associates to protest before the Commissioners against the recent order compelling them to remove from B street met Congressman Meredith of Virginia at the National Hotel at noon today and after a brief consultation repaired with him to the District building.

Representative Wellington of Maryland had also promised to go with the committee before the Commissioners, and as late as yesterday afternoon a telegram was received from him announcing that he would be here this morning. After waiting for nearly two hours the members of the committee decided to go on without him.

Mr. Wells A. Sherman of Fairfax, Va., had been selected to draw up a suitable petition, and while waiting for the committee this morning George G. Curtis and other farmers interested sat at the Center Market discussing the situation. Just before noon they repaired to the National Hotel, where Messrs. Meredith and Sherman awaited them.

The paper prepared by Mr. Sherman was then read, and met with the unanimous approval of those present. It was subsequently signed by all of the farmers.

There were nearly half a dozen closely written pages of the petition, setting forth distinctly the irreparable injury. It is said, that would be done the countrymen by the enforcement of the order of the Commissioners.

The petitioners stated, of a right and they enjoyed for at least three generations on the spot of the protesting families. For at least 100 years the farmers have had a prescriptive right in the space they are about to be made to vacate.

This extremely long period, so the petitioners concluded, should give them a vested right in the use of the street as they have it. Their presence where they are, or rather where they have been until recently, is a universal benefit.

DRAWN BY THE FARMERS.

Many people attracted by the fresh goods of the farmers come to the market when they would otherwise stop at the butcher's shop and at the delicatessen store. The market men inside the building, they said, must profit by the customers drawn by the farmers outside.

It was a profitable class, too, they stated, that came to the market because of the presence of the farmers. The District Commissioners are a regular customer of one of the occupants of B street. So are many families of Senators and Representatives.

The committee recognized the necessity of prohibiting the parking of wagons on B street. They would ask the Commissioners to rigidly enforce an order preventing the produce sellers from leaving their wagons in the middle of the street. But the wagons of the farmers, as they have in the past, must be allowed to remain in the street, as they are needed to keep them, are so backed up to the curb on either side that four wagons or carriages and two street cars can conveniently pass between them. It is the mass of empty vehicles between the curbing wagons that causes all the trouble, they contended in the petition.

The petition was signed by retailers outside the market alone. Their names are: Messrs. Wells A. Sherman, of Fairfax, Va.; Joseph F. of Belknap, Va.; Barnabas Bryant of Annapolis; M. Smith, of Montgomery county, Md.; George G. Curtis, of Prince George county, Md.; and J. W. Lavis, of Prince George county, Md.

Mr. Stinger, of Montgomery county, Md., went with the committee to represent the interests of the hay raisers of his county.

BEFORE THE COMMISSIONERS.

The party then proceeded to the District building, where the petition was read to the board and speedily in support of it were made by the committee.

Representative Meredith spoke first. He said he was accompanied by a committee of producers from the neighboring counties of Washington who have been in the habit of coming in here for years and selling their goods to the people.

Col. Townsend said: "Are these wholesale or retail dealers?"

"They are retail dealers," was the reply. "They are doing this for years, and it is an advantage to them in a business way, and I believe, a great convenience to citizens here. It gives fresh, desirable country produce to our people, and in no other way." He then introduced Mr. Wells A. Sherman of the committee.

Mr. Sherman said the use of B street could be made satisfactory to all with-out asking them to give up their business. "If the parking of wagons and teams in

THE FATAL DEFECT.

Senator Vest called on Commissioner Powell for a somewhat extended conference this morning. It is probable that the subject of street extension and the law under which the present work is proceeding were discussed.

The fatal defect which was brought out in the hearing before Judge Bingham was days ago, viz., that no money is appropriated to carry out the provisions of the act, making it necessary that there should be supplemental legislation at an early date to make useful much labor already performed.

Senator Vest will be a valuable aid in getting a bill for the purpose through the Senate.

Attorney John Ridout, for the Washington and Maryland Railroad, was at Secretary Fink's office this morning to look at the recent order declining to permit the railroad company to lower the grade of Rhode Island avenue by five feet out beyond Eckington, where the line crosses the Baltimore and Ohio track.

He also noted the refusal to change the location of the sewer along Rhode Island avenue pending the next to the engineers' plan to excavate the sewer to the level of the street, below the Baltimore and Ohio track.

It is claimed by the railroad engineers that the sewer line would be located at the crossing to put in a trolley line as proposed, and it was the street grade is lowered. Mayor Powell thinks the difficulty not so great.

B street were forbidden, there would be no obstruction of the usual traffic. They wished no connection with the wholesale market and asked no favor of the market company. They only wanted to be allowed to sell as they had done for years.

Mr. Sherman read from a paper which he submitted.

Mr. Stabler of Montgomery county said he represented a number of farmers' club at Sandy Springs, a large number of hay producers. They paid, he said, 50 cents for weighing every load of hay here, and in addition the agent of the inspector of weights and measures asks 15 cents for every load allowed to stand at the market space longer than a few moments. He thought this extra charge ought to be removed.

Col. Townsend, replying to Mr. Meredith, pointed out that the whole movement to establish a wholesale market was at the instance of farmers and wholesale produce dealers. After the order was issued for the market the wholesale dealers had said, to protect them, the retailers must be compelled to move from the vicinity of Center Market.

The Commissioners were carrying out the law. If the dealers could induce Congress to provide for the maintenance of the wholesale market by appropriation, they would not say a word about rentals. They had gone to considerable expense to fit up the market and expected to do even more. They must charge fees to maintain the market.

In conclusion, the matter was taken by the Commissioners under advisement.

Senator Vest called on Commissioner Powell for a somewhat extended conference this morning. It is probable that the subject of street extension and the law under which the present work is proceeding were discussed.

The fatal defect which was brought out in the hearing before Judge Bingham was days ago, viz., that no money is appropriated to carry out the provisions of the act, making it necessary that there should be supplemental legislation at an early date to make useful much labor already performed.

WILL SHIP FIVE MILLIONS

That Is the Amount of Engagements at Subtreasury So Far.

Yet All This Seemed to Affect Stocks Very Slightly, Though the Market Was Dull and Steady.

New York, Nov. 22.—Up to 11 o'clock $5,000,000 gold had been engaged for shipment to Europe by tomorrow's steamers, making the total engagements and shipments for the week $7,750,000.

Notwithstanding the enormous shipments, the stock market held tolerably steady, the decline in the railways in no case exceeding a point.

Commission houses were complaining of a lack of orders, and, as on previous days of the week, the professional operators had a monopoly of the limited trading.

The absence of pressure to sell in view of the efflux of gold and the heaviness of American securities in London was considered remarkable and excited general comment.

London houses turned up as sellers of local securities, and it was said the liquidations were for the account of operators who had been hurt by the slump in Kaffirs.

The grangers were a shade lower, notwithstanding the gain of $2.50-2.75 in the across country of the Northwest roads for the month of October. The Industrials were weaker than the railway list. Market dull and barely steady throughout.

Lezard Fines will ship $1,250,000 gold; W. H. Corson & Brother $1,000,000; and Heldbach, Ickelheimer & Co. $750,000 on tomorrow's European steamers. Montreal, Schall & Co. will ship $250,000 gold to Europe tomorrow. This makes the total engagements thus far $4,000,000. Up to 10:45 a. m. $1,500,000 gold has been ordered at the subtreasury.

L. Von Hoffman & Co. will ship $500,000 gold tomorrow, making the total thus far $3,000,000.
